DETAILED ACTION

Drawings

The drawings are objected to under 37 CFR 1.83(a). The drawings must show every feature of the invention specified in the claims. Therefore, the grip wherein all three sides have a concavity (claims 6 and 12) must be shown or the feature canceled from the claims. No new matter should be entered.

Corrected drawing sheets in compliance with 37 CFR 1.121(d) are required in reply to the Office action to avoid abandonment of the application. Any amended replacement drawing sheet should include all of the figures appearing on the immediate prior version of the sheet, even if only one figure is being amended. The figure or figure number of an amended drawing should not be labeled as "amended." If a drawing figure is to be canceled, the appropriate figure must be removed from the replacement sheet, and where necessary, the remaining figures must be renumbered and appropriate changes made to the brief description of the several views of the drawings for consistency. Additional replacement sheets may be necessary to show the renumbering of the remaining figures. Each drawing sheet submitted after the filing date of an application must be labeled in the top margin as either "Replacement Sheet" or "New Sheet" pursuant to 37 CFR 1.121(d). If the changes are not accepted by the examiner, the applicant will be notified and informed of any required corrective action in the next Office action. The objection to the drawings will not be held in abeyance.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-3, 6-9 and 12-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Balasty in view of Kim. Balasty discloses a hand held writing instrument to be held in a triangular aperture between a user's fore finger, middle finger and thumb (see the Abstract) comprised of a grip 16 having the same triangular cross-section along the longitudinal axis thereof (see Figure 1 and column 2, lines 7-9). Although the three sides do not include concavities therein, attention is directed to the Kim reference, which discloses another writing instrument having a triangular cross-section wherein the sides thereof are provided with concavities that extend along the entire length of the sides (see Figure 3) and along the longitudinal length of the writing instrument in order to provide seats for the fingers during use (see column 2, lines 34-41). Accordingly, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to include such concavities along the sides of the Balasty device in order to provide seats thereon for the fingers of a user.

Claims 4, 5, 10 and 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Balasty in view of Kim as applied to the claims above, and further in view of Rusk. Although the Kim reference does not disclose that one side thereof remains flat, attention is directed to the Rusk reference, which discloses another grip having a triangular cross-section for a writing instrument wherein two sides have concavities therein and one side remains "substantially flat" (see Figure 5) in order to enable the device to engage the fore and middle fingers, as well as the thumb in a comfortable fashion. Accordingly, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to include concavities in only two of the sides of the Balasty device (while the third side remains flat) in order to enable the device to comfortably engage the fingers of a user.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The Bellue, Goldsmith and Alskog reference are cited for disclosing other triangular writing instruments.
